RCC Board Race Stirs 'Hushed' History Of No Blacks

District

Questioned

The Black Voice News

RIVERSIDE

By Chris Levister

The economy is a bust, state coffers are empty, voters are mad, Barack Obama is riding an anti-incumbent mood to the White House and five challengers for two open seats on the coveted Riverside Community College District board sense hope in the nation's appetite for change.

The stakes are especially high for Linnie Frank Bailey, Delorise Anderson and Samuel Davis who like Obama are attempting to shatter history. If elected in November the winner(s) would become the first African-American(s) elected to the 92-year-old institution's Board of Trustees.

Bailey, Anderson and Davis (who ran unsuccessfully for the RCC board in 2006) know they're in an uphill race laced with a huge swath of variables that might have an impact on people's votes – including race, ideology and party identification. Many in the Riverside County African-American community describe the local political scene as a near impenetrable network of big money politics emboldened by a herd mentality of colonial racial views and a 'hushed' history of exclusion at the ballot box and beyond.

"My candidacy is about getting rid of the stalemate," argues Bailey the 52-year-old Obama delegate from California's 44th District, a Corona mom and self-described 'blogger on training wheels'. Most election watchers feel Bailey poses the biggest challenge to incumbents, board President Mary Figueroa elected in 1995 and Mark Takano a board member since 1990.

In June the Washington Post chronicled this political neophyte's ascent from a $10

Dr. Dev GnanaDev

Dr. Dev GnanaDev, Arrowhead Regional Medical Center medical director and advocate of quality health care for those who are less fortunate, was installed as president of the California Medical Association (CMA) Sunday in Sacramento.

Dr. GnanaDev, chief of surgery and medical director at ARMC since 2000, becomes only the third physician from San Bernardino or Riverside counties to serve as president in the CMA's 152-year history.

The CMA, formed in 1856, is an advocacy organization that represents more than 34,000 California physicians. Dedicated to the health of Californians, CMA is active in the legal, legislative, reimbursement and regulatory areas on behalf of physicians and their patients.

"I'm honored to serve as President of the CMA," said Dr. GnanaDev, who has

Bibbs Creates Black Madonna For Movie, The Secret Life Of Bees

The Black Voice News

MORENO VALLEY

Artist Charles Bibbs

Renowned artist and local residence Charles Bibbs was all but marveled when movie producer Zola Mashiriki and Gina Prince-Blythe (Director of "Love and Basketball") of Fox Searchlight Pictures, Inc. approached him earlier this year. They approached Bibbs on his artistic style and on the strength of his past mother and child images, which led to a proposal to Bibbs to create "The Black Madonna" image for the movie, "Secret Life of Bees."

"The Secret Life of Bees" movie is based on Sue Monk's bestselling novel, in 2002. This southern, but emotionally heartwarming production was directed by Gina Prince Blythe, and produced by Jada Pinkett-Smith, and Lauren Donner Schuler, who are very influential in the film industry. The starring cast members in the movie are Queen Latifah, Alicia Keys, Jennifer Hudson, Sophie Okonedo who played the Boatright sisters, and Dakota Fanning, who played the character of Lily, a young white southern girl who is troubled by her late Mother.

Bibbs was present at recent premieres in Los Angeles, Houston, Detroit and Atlanta, where he introduced the film and discussed his involvement with the movie.

Bibbs is one of the most celebrated artists in the African American contemporary art industry. It is also noted that he may be the first African American visual artist Fox Searchlight has hired to create work for a major production.

"The Secret Life of Bees" will be released in theaters on October 17, 2008.

Green Valley Initiative Receives $100,000 Grant

SCE to help fund the economic development initiative
to bring green-tech jobs and industry to the Inland Empire

The Black Voice News

CORONA

The Green Valley Initiative (GVI) has been awarded a $100,000 grant from Southern California Edison (SCE) to help further the progress being made to promote clean and green technologies in Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

GVI is a regional economic development plan launched in 2007 to promote renewable energy sources, alternative fuels, biotech, nanotech and other sustainable industries in Riverside and San Bernardino counties, a Southern California region referred to as the Inland Empire. To date, the boards of supervisors of both counties, the Western Riverside Council of Governments and more than 25 cities and public agencies have adopted resolutions in support of the initiative.

"Southern California Edison is excited to see the cities, counties, businesses, universities and community leaders of the Inland Empire working together to establish a better future for the region," said Les Starck, SCE Vice-President of Local Public Affairs. "The Inland Empire is ideally suited for these types of technologies for a variety of reasons, most notably its anticipated population growth, proximity to major transportation hubs and its boundless sunshine. We look forward to being a part of this important transformation for Inland Southern California."

Starck will present the grant to GVI Chairman Ali Sahabi Thursday at the U.S. Department of Commerce's National District Export Council Conference at the Wyndham Hotel in Palm Springs. The conference, "Travel & Trade, Redefining Exports," has dedicated a portion of its programming to clean and green industries, particularly those highlighted through the Green Valley Initiative.

Sahabi said the grant will help fund the necessary steps toward establishing an independent, regional entity that will assume operations of GVI in January.

"Southern California Edison is leading by example, showing the world that it makes good business sense to support the environment, support community and to support initiatives designed to benefit others," Sahabi said. "We are pleased to partner with them on this important effort."

GVI is a project of the Green Institute for Valley Empowerment, (GIVE), a nonprofit organization established in 2005 to promote balance in the way people live, how their choices impact the environment and others in their community. GIVE hosts events and initiatives, and sponsors college campus chapters to educate the public on issues related to sustainability, a term used to describe this social, economic and environmental balance.

In California Ex-Felons Can Vote

Registration Deadline:
October 20

The Black Voice News

INLAND EMPIRE

By Chris Levister

Undaunted by the heat, ex-felon Curtis Griffin spends his late summer afternoons walking Rialto and Fontana's bleakest neighborhoods on the hunt for ex-cons – each a potential voter who might cast the decisive ballot in the historic November 4 national election.

Finding them isn't the hard part, explains Griffin, it's getting them to admit that a past mistake has kept them from the ballot box.

"Most ex-felons out here are under the false assumption they can't vote. In California you can vote! There's a lot of misinformation and confusion out there."

That's an understatement. Consider this: a 2001 U.S. Civil Rights Commission report concluded that the disenfranchisement of ex-convicts is "the biggest hindrance to Black voting since the poll tax."

At voter registration events like this, activists and election officials are spreading the word: 'For the record, felons can vote'

The racial pattern of racial disenfranchisement laws is particularly egregious. Thirteen percent of all Black men – 1.4 million cannot vote due to a patchwork of voting restrictions and the paralyzing grip of post Civil War Jim Crow laws. That represents just over one-third (36 percent) of the total disenfranchised population blocked from the vote even after they have completed their sentence and paid their debt to society: a rate seven times that of any other group in America.

The effects of voter disenfranchisement are universal except for Maine and Vermont, all states deprive individuals with felony convictions of the right to vote for varying periods of time.

In California where the criminal justice system remains particularly rife with racial disparities, advocates like Griffin and nonprofits groups like Voting Rights for All are hard at work spreading the word: "In California ex-felons can vote."

Under California law, people with felony convictions can register to vote if they are out of prison (fully served their sentences) and off parole.

Although most of the state's voting

My Position On The Propositions

Hardy L.
BROWN

When it comes to having confusing propositions on the ballot, this year is no exception. While the ballot measure process of and by the people is a good thing in some respects, it has become a lousy way to run a government of the people and by the people. What I have witnessed is only the rich and powerful can generate enough money to pay poor people to stand outside grocery stores and other retail outlets where poor people frequent to get signatures for these propositions. Once the propositions qualify for presentation to us and are passed by the voters, it is the rich who share the benefits. Now I am not saying all propositions are bad but many do not need to be placed on our ballots.

For example, the proposition to regulate how much space chickens should live in to lay eggs before they are then slaughtered or the one that is regulating who should marry whom. Now while I have strong personal beliefs and feelings as a Christian, just trying to get heterosexuals to stay married is a monumental task. Another one is to get an independent commission to draw lines for our representatives instead of politicians. Now tell me where you are going to find people who are interested in politics that are not patricians in their views. It sounds good to say government auditors would select 60 registered voters and submit them to legislative leaders to reduce it down to 8 and then have these 8 pick 6 others to serve with them. I can already see that Blacks, Hispanics, Indians and Asians will come up short in this process. This commission will then draw boundaries that will exclude our voting strength in cities like Los Angeles, San Francisco and Oakland all in the name of accountability and fairness. Once these boundaries are drawn they will last 10 years. So think long and hard before you vote for this.

When we scream, fuss and fight about fairness, equality and accountability think of us now not receiving procurement contract opportunities and service from the state. The state officials say these words sound strange to them, if that exists now just think of what will happen when our vote is diluted.

Having said that about a few of this year's propositions, I am offering you my recommendations on the state propositions:

Prop. 1	High Speed Train Bond	YES
Prop. 1A	Safe Rail	YES
Prop. 2	Treatment of Farm Animals	YES
Prop. 3	Children Hospital Bond	YES
Prop. 4	Parental Notification	YES
Prop. 5	Nonviolent Offenders	NO
Prop. 6	Criminal Penalties	NO
Prop. 7	Energy	NO
Prop. 8	Limit on Marriage	YES
Prop. 9	Victims Rights	NO
Prop. 10	Alternative Fuel Vehicles	NO
Prop. 11	Redistricting	NO
Prop. 12	Veterans Bond Act	YES

Obama Does Great in Polls – But Don't Believe Them

By George E. Curry
NNPA Columnist

According to the polls, Barack Obama is steadily widening his lead over Republican rival John McCain to become the next president of the United States. A Washington Post-ABC News poll released Monday shows Obama with a 53 percent to 43 percent lead among likely voters.

There is only one problem – don't believe the polls.

As the Washington Post noted in a story on its poll, at this stage in 1992, Bill Clinton held a 14-point lead over President George H.W. Bush yet he won by only 6 percent. In mid-October 1976, Jimmy Carter held a 13-point lead over incumbent Gerald Ford but won by only two points.

When the issue of race is added to the mix, conventional wisdom – which is often neither conventional nor wise – goes out of the window.

Uppermost in the minds of African-Americans is the Bradley effect, named after former Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, who sought to become governor of California in 1982. Even last-minute polls showed him leading by a wide margin of victory. Yet, Bradley narrowly lost the election to Republican George Deukmejian. Many say it was because White voters lied to pollsters about their willingness to vote for an African-American.

But it wasn't just, as John McCain would say, that one.

Pre-election poll also overstated the margin of victory for Harold Washington in Chicago, David Dinkins in New York City and Doug Wilder in Virginia.

But Bradley's race predated the Internet and cell phones and before Black music did more to erase racial barriers than any presidential speech. In fact, there are an increasing number of people questioning the premise of the Bradley effect.

In a story headlined, "Do Polls Lie About Race?" New York Times reporter Kate Zernike wrote: "But pollsters and political scientists say concern about a Bradley effect – some call it a Wilder effect or a Dinkins effect, and plenty call it a theory in search of data – is misplaced. It obscures what they argue is the more important point: there are plenty of ways that race complicates polling."

"Considered alone or in combination, these factors could produce an unforeseen Obama landslide with surprise victories in the South, a stunningly large Obama loss, or a recount-thin margin. In a year that has already turned expectations upside down, it is hard to completely reassure the fretters."

Looking back, some observers say pollsters got it wrong with Bradley not because White voters lied to pollsters, but because they failed to factor in the absentee ballots. Whatever the reason, some researchers think that's less likely to happen today.

According to the New York Times: "In a new study, Daniel J. Hopkins, a postdoctoral fellow at Harvard, considered 133 elections between 1989 and 2006 and found that Blacks running for office before 1996 suffered a median Bradley effect of 3 percentage points. Blacks running after 1996, however, performed about 3 percentage points better than their polls predicted."

As the debate continues about whether the Bradley effect is valid, the McCain camp continues to exploit the issue of race.

When Obama's name has been mentioned at McCain-Palin rallies, there have been cries of "Kill him!" and "Off with his head!"

It has gotten so bad that McCain has urged his followers to tone down the rhetoric. Away from rallies, however, his attack ads use code words to argue, as Palin put it, that Obama is "not one of us."

But observers have been able to see past the code words.

"From the start, there have always been two separate but equal questions about race in this election," Frank Rich wrote in the New York Times. "Is there still enough racism in America to prevent a Black man from being elected president no matter what? And, will Republicans play the race card? The jury is still out on the first question until Nov. 4. But we now have the unambiguous answer to the second: Yes."

Rich explained, "McCain, who is no racist, turned to this desperate strategy only as Obama started to pull ahead."

He isn't the only person who feels McCain is playing to racial fears.

"Obama has been running as a post-racial candidate from the start, and he has been doing it very well," David Brinkley, a noted presidential historian told the New York Times. "But the fact of the matter is that some voters – we can't know yet how many – will not get past his race. And I very much believe that the McCain-Palin ticket is tapping into that."

And there is plenty to tap into. In that same New York Times article, John Schuster, a Republican from Wheeling, W.Va., said, "What you hear around here is, would you rather have a black friend in the White House, or a white enemy?" He explained, "Most guys I know are for McCain, and a lot of it's because of race."

No Voter Meltdown on Election Day

By Marc H. Morial

In recent years, the American people have endured all manner of natural and man-made disasters, including hurricanes, tornados, floods, droughts, fires and now an economic meltdown of epic proportions.

While some damage from these events is inevitable, the lack of government and citizen preparedness has increased the devastation caused by these calamities.

The $700 billion bail-out package that was signed into law last week will hopefully fix some of the damage caused by Wall Street greed and lax government oversight. That bill was better than the Administration's original plan, but it is far from perfect and still does not do enough in our view to protect homeowners who are facing foreclosure. With the presidential election of 2008 less than a month away, voters must ask themselves two important questions: First, which candidate has the best long-term solution for fixing our economy and helping American families and homeowners get back on their feet. And second, are we prepared as citizens on November 4 to make our voices heard, stand up for our rights and make sure every vote is counted.

With foreclosures continuing to pile up and the loss of another 159,000 jobs in September, our country is facing the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression.

Wall Street may be breathing a sigh of relief because of the bailout package, but Main Street is still waiting to exhale. We will have our say on November 4th.

That's why the National Urban League is launching an unprecedented "Vote to Empower" campaign focusing on the urgent need for voter education, increased participation and the prevention of the kind of vote suppression that has occurred in the last two presidential elections.

We are demanding that all election officials uphold their duties and do what is necessary now and all the way to Election Day to prevent any infringements on voting rights.

We are calling on governors to verify that they have contingency plans for all foreseeable problems associated with the predicted massive turnout. And we are urging the President and both political campaigns to announce a zero-tolerance for voter suppression.

The National Urban League is ready to do its part. As a start, we are spotlighting areas of concern and issuing our first in a series of alerts and recommendations for citizen action. For example, in Michigan allegations have been made that foreclosure lists will be used to prevent citizens from voting. If true, this means that victims of foreclosure will lose their voting rights. A lawsuit has been filed to prevent this from happening and we will continue to monitor the situation. Other potential suppression efforts across the nation are also being investigated.

Finally, it is important that you educate yourself about the voting rules in your state and report any potential problems such as lack of voting machines or voter intimidation.

Go to <http://www.votetoempower.com/> or nucbp@nucbp.org for details on how to report voting problems.

The swift action taken to address the growing panic in the financial markets reminds us of the government's fundamental responsibility to take action to avert national catastrophes. On November 4, voters will have the last word. Preventing a voter meltdown in 2008 is just as important as preventing an economic meltdown.

Breast Cancer: Black Women Less Likely to Get It, More Likely to Die from It

By Julianne Malveaux
NNPA Columnist

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month. Millions of women are sporting pink ribbon pins in support of a month when organizations like the Susan G. Komen Foundation fundraise and galvanize people around the quest for a cure for breast cancer. They are right to raise awareness – more than 184,000 women will be diagnosed with breast cancer in the United States in 2008, and more than 40,000 will die from breast cancer.

While African-American women are less likely than White women to get breast cancer, we are more likely to die from it. The morbidity rate for White women is 9.4 per 100,000, compared to 15.4 per 100,000 for African-American women.

Additionally, African-American women often are diagnosed with breast cancer when they are younger, and when African-American women under 55 are diagnosed with breast cancer, it is more likely to have deadlier effects. Researchers are studying the reasons why African-American women are so much more vulnerable than other women are to breast cancer. But the findings make it important for African-American women to get regular mammograms and to deal with other aspects of our health.

Whenever there are health awareness weeks or months, whether they are for breast cancer, muscular dystrophy, diabetes, or another cause, I crave attention to the broader issue of health care and health access. We can take a slice out of the health care challenge by focusing, in October, on breast cancer, but the fact is that part of African-American women's increased vulnerability to breast cancer is a result of differential access to health care and health services.

Too many African-Americans lack health insurance. Too many wear the stress of racism in poor eating and living habits, and it shows up with obesity, high blood pressure, and the higher incidence of other diseases in our community.

African-American women are more likely than any other population, in 2008, to be diagnosed with HIV/AIDS. When another population was most likely to be diagnosed, HIV/AIDS awareness garnered headlines. Now, too many are silent about this disease, unless they are talking about the international incidence of HIV/AIDS.

It is not clear why our nation has not galvanized around the health care issue. To be sure, both presidential candidates have ideas about health insurance and health care; their plans are divergent. In my humble opinion, Hillary Rodham Clinton had one of the best health care plans we've seen in a long time, reflective of the work she has spent on health care since she worked on it as First Lady in the Clinton Administration.

Senators Obama and McCain would be advised to review her plan and incorporate aspects of it into their own work. Somehow, every American must have access to preventive health care, and protection from bankruptcy when they are diagnosed with expensive diseases. And somehow, as we raise awareness about breast cancer, we must also raise awareness about the ways breast cancer incidence is intertwined with the status of our health care system.

Breast cancer awareness has an international dimension. Hala Modellmog, President of the Susan G. Komen for the Cure, indicates that 10 million people will die in the next 25 years absent intervention around breast cancer. Last year, the Komen organization held a global advocacy summit in Hungary, and announced pilot programs in Eastern Europe, Latin America, Africa, and the Middle East. This month, they sent delegations to Ghana and Tanzania.

It is important to note that for all the challenges women face with breast cancer in the United States, health care access is even more limited in developing countries. The Komen organization is to be commended for their work in taking breast cancer global.

Back at home, though, the health care disparities that riddle our system are as present in the realm of breast cancer and in other areas. Sisters must be among those sporting pink ribbons, but beyond the pink ribbons, we must all be passionate advocates for increased health care access, especially in the African-American community.

Williams Wins Miss Black California USA Talented Teen Crown

The Black Voice News

RIALTO

Brittney Williams

Brittney Williams was awarded the title of Miss Black California USA Talented Teen 2009 by the national Miss Black USA Pageant and Scholarship Foundation. She competed against hundreds of the states' most competitive African American Teenagers throughout the state of California in a closed competition through the national organization. She will represent the Golden State next summer in the Miss Black USA Talented Teen pageant, to compete for a $5,000.00 scholarship, and a host of other prizes.

The 14-year-old teen sensation is a ninth grade student at Wilmer Amina Carter High School in Rialto, California and is interested in pursuing a college education beyond high school, with a concentration in Law. Brittney Williams is a stand out student who is very involved in student activities, in addition to being an active member of New Direction C.O.G.I.C in Pomona.

During her reign Miss Williams will travel the state to speaking and appearing at various events. She will also promote the Heart Truth Campaign and the 50 Million Pound Challenge as an official spokes model for these organizations which have partnered with the national organization.

Vintage Cars Help Celebrate Drive-In Mural

Mural designed unveiled this past Wednesday

The Black Voice News

RIVERSIDE

The most popular drive-in in Southern California, Riverside's Van Buren Drive-in Theatre, will open in the daylight next week -- but not for a movie.

The drive-in, 3035 Van Buren Blvd, will unveil a mural commemorating the citrus-growing glory days on its original 1964 designed by David VonDerLinn facade Wednesday. The mural, of Vonderland Studios, shows a sun-lit orange grove, circa 1930s. The drive-in was built on the site of an orange grove.

The vivid 42-by-60-foot mural will definitely be seen by drivers on Van Buren.

"We thought this would be a good way celebrate our 44th year in the same location -- to remind everyone of the citrus heritage in the neighborhood," said Manager Fred Williams, who has been the drive-in manager for 40 years.

The racy melodrama "The Carpetbaggers" awed Riverside audiences at the sold-out opening in July 1964 and, unlike other drive-ins, the Van Buren has been booming every since, Mr. Williams said.

As part of the celebration, vintage cars will parade to the theatre at 10 a.m., Wednesday, starting from Arlington Park, 3860 Van Buren Boulevard. They will remain at the theatre until 1 p.m. The auto parade, featuring several auto collector societies in the area, is meant to bring back the memory of the drive-in heydays. Everything from a 1913 Model T to '60s Detroit steel will be on display.

"A lot of us remember when the whole family would jump into the car and go to the movies, said Councilmember Chris MacArthur, Ward 5, who solicited support from the auto societies. "This mural project reflects our commitment to preserving Riverside's small town feel and citrus heritage."

City Prepares For Upcoming Riverside Freeway Construction

The Black Voice News

RIVERSIDE

The high-occupancy vehicle (HOV) lane on the Riverside Freeway (State Route 91), between Tyler Street and Magnolia Avenue will be closed this weekend, Oct. 17-19.

Construction of the La Sierra Avenue overpass requires the closure of the freeway's eastbound and westbound HOV lanes from 8 p.m., Friday, until 5 a.m., Sunday.

Additionally, both eastbound and westbound No. 1 and 2 lanes will close from 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. Friday and Saturday nights.

La Sierra Avenue over the freeway will remain open during construction, although delays are expected. All businesses will remain open and accessible. Drivers should use alternate routes, such as Pierce, Magnolia or Tyler Streets, during the closures.

The $38 million project will replace the La Sierra Avenue bridges over both the freeway and the railroad tracks with six-lane bridges to reduce traffic congestion. New dual left-turn lanes onto the freeway will make it easier for vehicles to access the 91, while ramps will be widened from two to three lanes.

The project is expected to be completed by the summer of 2009.

High Blood Pressure

At last, something...

Physicians are looking for African Americans volunteers to participate in a research study of the investigational use of two approved medications in their ability to lower high blood pressure.

African Americans with known or suspected high blood pressure may qualify to participate in this nationwide study. All study-related care and study medication is provided at no cost. Compensation for time and travel may be available.

The prevalence of high blood pressure in African Americans is higher than any other race or ethnic group. It typically occurs at a younger age and can lead to severe heart and kidney problems. You can take action against this serious condition.

online donation for Barack Obama (her very first political contribution) to one of California's 166 delegates to the 2008 Democratic National Convention. Last month The Press Enterprise called Bailey a "rare challenger who would make a fine trustee".

But despite a glowing acknowledgment of the candidate, the newspaper handed its coveted endorsement to Figueroa and Takano.

Frustrating but all too familiar laments Ralph Rivers a Riverside activist and founding member of the Inland African-American Chamber of Commerce. Rivers ran unsuccessfully for RCC trustee in 1990.

"This kind of status quo mentality is an affront to people of color. African-American candidates who raise the issue of establishing a 'truly' multicultural board face a wall of criticism and even banishment. In Riverside there's this prevailing belief that to win a seat on the RCC board one must walk on water," claims Rivers.

Rivers claims when he questioned board members about Black representation he was denounced and publicly accused of playing the race card. Today he likens his 90's campaign experience to the doubts dogging Obama. "Become president of the Harvard Law Review you're not good enough to become president. Dress a moose in record time and you're competent, experienced and vice presidential. This is what racism does. It covers up, rationalizes and minimizes positive qualities in one and emphasizes negative qualities in another when there is a color difference."

But the fact is says Rivers - years of conservative racial views played out at the ballot box have allowed the RCC board to systematically exclude a large swath of the population namely African-Americans.

All five members of the current RCC board live in Riverside. The lack of direct representation has stirred the simmering question of district representation.

Dell Roberts, a longtime Eastside Riverside resident, member of the RCC Foundation who consults with the Riverside Unified School District on issues of race says the absence of a Black board member and district representation begs an answer.

"The question of District representation in Norco-Corona and Moreno Valley particularly among African-Americans can't be answered with a 'no' answer. Changing people's attitudes has to start with a broad based commitment to inclusion followed by open honest dialogue," said Roberts.

"Who speaks for us?" says Roddie Dean whose backyard sits in the path of RCC's Moreno Valley campus. Black student enrollment at the campus is exploding - a reflection of the city's growing Black population and the region's increasing west to east migration. "African-

Linnie Frank Bailey, an Obama delegate from California's 44th District, strolls the grounds of the state capitol in Sacramento with husband Greg Bailey.

American students are growing in numbers - RCC unwilling to address the question of equal representation is not shy about spending Black tax dollars for new buildings and renovation - so what we have amounts to taxation without representation."

Bailey who enjoys support from liberals and conservatives and whose backyard sits in the shadow of RCC's Norco-Corona campus says race is not the biggest factor driving today's electorate.

"Not all whites are prejudiced. For so long what I've heard is 'this is a conservative Republican area'. I think that's changing for even those who wear that banner because of the overwhelming dissatisfaction with the Bush administration. People want change."

Now or later - eventually RCC will have to look at board term limits and expanded district representation."

"I'm not sure spending 12 or 18 years on the Trustee Board is in the best interest of the community and the students who are being served," said Bailey. "It is time for new and fresh voices that represent the needs of the students, faculty, staff and 'all' of the communities served by the District."

RCC's Mo Val campus will need to triple its numbers of classrooms, offices and labs in the next 15 to 20 years to address current shortages and projected growth, according to a plan outlined in April. Enrollment is expected to nearly double from 9,404 in the fall of 2006 to 17,154 by 2024.

Figueroa a longtime advocate for diversity who along with Bailey was endorsed by the Black Voice News says she's running for re-election to provide stability and to oversee a host of new projects at RCC, including a plan to transform Moreno Valley and Norco into separate colleges in addition to Riverside City College.

Ms. Figueroa, herself a minority says she knows that providing the best possible education ultimately benefits the local community and society overall but she takes issue with claims that RCC trustees would not welcome African-American members.

"We've done a lot to promote racial and ethnic diversity on the board. I think you have to focus on the Riverside electorate. Traditionally Riverside County voters are conservative."

Takano meanwhile is seeking his fifth term to complete some unfinished business, including the proposed Riverside School of the Arts, the transition of a three-college district and the chancellor search.

"The district really needs an experienced board member who knows the ropes," said Takano, a high school English teacher.

Challenger Samuel Davis, a dentist, and an instructor at Cal Baptist University said he would bring a new perspective to the board particularly on the issues of student retention and choosing a new chancellor. "There is a population of students at RCC that are unrepresented. That must change."

Even the most conservative challenger will admit the November election comes at a pivotal time for what began in 1916 as a branch of Riverside Poly High School and feeder for students seeking a 4-year degree at UC Riverside. Viewed as an academic powerhouse RCC is ranked among the nation's 25 top community colleges, the state's third largest community college district with more than 33,000 students 33 percent of which are Latino and 11 percent African-American.

The district has been without a permanent chancellor for more than a year. Two nationwide searches have cost taxpayers nearly $175,000, resulted in fierce board infighting and no applicant being selected. Critics argue that while taxpayer's dollars are being spent on searches that go nowhere, dropout rates among Latinos and Black students remain shamefully high.

Whatever the outcome of the RCC election Bailey backer RCC trustee and Riverside Obama organizer Jose Medina, believes the November election has been a chance for the local electorate to get in touch with their priorities and racial attitudes.

"The greatest change brought by the 2008 Elections may be America's perception about who we are. This is a watershed moment," said Medina. Even the younger generations now understand what it means to vote as a way to change America."

income patients. He received the Medical Board of California's Physician Recognition Award in 2005, for contributions in the caring of indigent patients. In 2007, he won the prestigious American Medical Association's Pride in the Profession Award, given annually to physicians who have dedicated their careers to serving people with little or no health insurance.

"This is a great honor for Arrowhead Regional Medical Center and all public hospitals," said ARMC Director Patrick Petre. "We stand with Dr. GnanaDev as he steps into his presidency at CMA during a critical time for health care in our state and our nation."

Board certified in general surgery, vascular surgery and surgical critical care, Dr. GnanaDev earned his Medical Degree in Kurnool, India, at Kurnool Medical College. Dr. GnanaDev, his wife, Rosaria, and their children, Monica, Yamuna and Raja, live in Upland.

code was passed in 1974, these important legal rights have been mostly hidden, unspoken and unknown by the general public.

Last week during a Bible study at the Rock Church in San Bernardino, Melvin Stokes lamented about felons not having the right to vote.

"I've always wanted to vote... it has always been told to me that if you were convicted of a felony, you can't vote," said the ex-felon who has been off parole 10 years.

The misconception is not just among ex-felons. "I thought people convicted of felonies lost their right to vote. I see now it must be a common misconception," said a retired Alameda County judge, quoted in the San Francisco Chronicle, October 16, 2004.

To return to the ballot box, felons must negotiate suffrage laws that vary from state to state, in many cases working with election officials, parole officers and judges who can be both unfamiliar with the law and hostile to former convicts seeking to register.

Such challenges matter little to Griffin and others trying to return former criminals to voter rolls, an effort they consider crucial in light of the results of the past two presidential elections: A shift of a few hundred votes in Florida in 2000 would have changed the outcome of the presidential race, and the results in 2004 came down to a margin of 119,000 votes in Ohio.

The nonprofits groups and individual activists making the push on felons' behalf agree the effort is broader this year than in previous elections. They expect the effort to benefit Barack Obama more than John McCain, given that the population of former felons is disproportionately Black.

Who Can Register?

A person entitled to register to vote must be a U.S. citizen, a resident of California, not in prison or on parole for the conviction of a felony, and at least 18 years of age.

You can vote after you have completed parole. There is no waiting period and you do not have to prove that you are off parole. Election officials have access to parole status data. You can vote if you are on probation, or have completed probation. If you have been charged with a felony but not yet been convicted; If you have been convicted of a felony but are in county jail and not in state prison.

You must register by October 20. Pick up a registration form at your local library or post office. If you are in county jail, ask a friend or family member to pick up a form for you or request one through jail authorities.

Use your home address or your residence address. The registration form is a legal document that requires your signature and either a California driver's license/ID card number or the last four digits of your Social Security number. If you are not sure you are registered, voting officials encourage you to register again.

Culturally Competent Mental Health Care

Dear Dr. Levister: My father has a history of mental disorders. He refuses to get help, saying he does not trust doctors. Among Black people, is this a common problem? L.F.

Dear L.F. Many Americans, including African-Americans, underestimate the impact of mental disorders. Many believe symptoms of mental illnesses, such as depression, are curses or "just the blues." Issues of distrust in the health care system and mental illness stigma frequently lead African-Americans to initially seek mental health support from non-medical sources.

One out of three Africans who need mental health care receives it. Compared to the general population, African-Americans are more likely to stop treatment early and are less likely to receive follow-up care.

Despite on going efforts to improve mental health services for African Americans and other culturally diverse groups, barriers remain in access to and quality of care from insurance coverage to culturally competent services.

For those with insurance, coverage for mental health services and substance use disorders is substantially lower than coverage for other illnesses such as hypertension and diabetes.

Contact the American Psychiatric Association and explain your father's illness and distrust of his doctors. Referral to an African-American mental health specialist may help.

Historically, mental health research has been based on Caucasian and European based populations, and did not incorporate understanding of racial and ethnic groups and their beliefs, traditions and value systems. Culturally competent care is crucial to improving utilization of services and effectiveness of treatment for these communities.

Culture, which is understood to be a combination of common heritage beliefs, values and rituals are an important aspect of racial and ethnic communities.

African Americans are a resilient people who have withstood enslavement and persistent discrimination to lead productive lives and build vibrant communities. Throughout U.S. history, the African American community has faced inequities in accessing education, employment, and health care. However, strong social, religious, and family connections have helped many African-Americans overcome adversity and maintain optimal mental health and well being.

Family Talks

Originally the scriptor classicus wrote for the upper Roman classes in the 2nd century AD and to them "Classic" meant "a first-class author of acknowledged excellence." Every feature of the ancient Greeks and Romans elite was expanded into the world of eminent authors. Those of ancient Romans were termed Classici Auctores (Classic authors)—i.e. authors of the best or first class because of their masterpieces having been declared to be Classic, Classics, or Classical. However, "Classic" should mean nothing more than "belonging to a certain class." But by a process analogous to that whereby we say a person has "taste"—when we mean she has 'good taste'—by common usage "Classic" came to refer to "belonging to the first class of excellence, the best." For scholars of the Middle Ages the best consisted of writings deemed worthy of preservation and study. During the Renaissance, 'Classic' referred to the Classical ("the height of an achievement" in art or literature) in the sense of "a writer read in the classroom" (i.e. of an ancient author and not necessarily of first class). Throughout the Renaissance the high esteem in which ancient Greek and Latin, but especially Ancient African authors, was held bestowed on these authors the name "Classic."

At the end of the Renaissance, Classical was applied to serious or conventional music (as distinct from light or popular music). The period of the 18th century marked the development of the symphony and the rise of such composers as Bach, Beethoven (a mulatto), Brahms, Tchaikovsky, Handel, Haydn, and Mozart. In the Western world those who specialized in classical Latin were known as classical 'scholars'—not to be confused with the vastly different African speculative 'scholars.' The works studied, the subject itself, and the study of the subject took the label of the Classics—meaning first-rate works. Characteristics of such first rate Classical works were deemed to be: formal elegance, correctness, dignity, order, balance, unity, proportion, restraint, and 'noble simplicity and quiet grandeur.' Supposedly as a result, the Classics of Art or Literature are regarded as forming the basis of modern culture.

Today, Classic, Classics, and Classical refer to masterpieces of ancient cultures—the implication being that nothing can be taken away from or added to it without doing it some injury. This determination is best made by Sages of all culture and certainly not by Europeans. Classic are works of acknowledged excellence and used as standards and foundations—or to establish them. 'Classic' points to the highest class—a standard of excellence—a perfect instance—the highest or pre-eminent excellence (e.g. Homer's Iliad). Western Classics point to works of great and lasting value; to the character of the author's achievement as authoritative, significant; and to great merit (based on wide agreement)—although it may have been superseded by some subsequent person. Because of its vagueness, "Classical" can apply to the Classics; to Classicism; to a way of thinking; or to a period of style (e.g. music, education) related to or typical of the Arts, Literature, and Culture of the ancient Greeks (400 to 350 BC) and Romans (50 BC to AD 50). Classical Thought is of enduring importance or significance; with a high standard of principles; and of simple and basic (i.e. rationality, objectivity, logic, and clarity) conclusions. Classical Art has balance, idealized beauty, and perfected form (i.e. form over content). Even though Western Classic, Classics, and Classical customarily refer to the Arts and Literature of ancient Greece and Rome, both the ancient Greeks and Romans borrowed their foundation and models from Ancient Africa. However, whereas Europeans honor perfecting, elaborating, or expanding on lofty patterns of a Material World nature, Spiritually and Creativity are at the core of Africans' Classic, Classics, and Classical masterpieces.

Men & Parents Beware: Minor Females Post Suggestive Profiles Online To Attract Adult Males

The popular weekly television news show, Dateline has a series called, "TO Catch a Predator," that I rate as a well intended but lukewarm effect sexual crime deterrent against children. The ongoing series aids law enforcement in catching Internet Chat Room adult male sexual predators of young girls. The sting operation works by an under cover policewoman entering an Internet Chat Room and posting her profile as a young girl usually 13 or 14 years old in search of friendship or a chatting buddy. The profile attracts other youth desiring friendships; however, it also attracts adult males seeking sexual relationships with female minors. Ultimately the men go for the jailbait and are led my their perverted lust to a house where they expect to meet the a sexually permissive young girl. Upon arrival they are arrested on national television.

Although the sting operation is a service to the community because it endeavors to protect innocent girls from Internet predators; however, it puts the safety and/or lives of the men in serious jeopardy by exposing them on national television. There are many people that like to take the law into their own hands when it comes to child molesters. However, besides being bothered by the 'Dateline' inadvertently setting the men up for harm, I am also bothered that little or nothing is being done to curb the solicitation of real minor girls on the Internet seeking cyberspace relationships with older males for sexual experimentation and/or profit.

There are minor girls making themselves available via the Internet. Recently, I discovered that a 12-year old girl on my street has a My Space profile where she described herself as 19 years old, bisexual and seeking new friends. This is a girl that has twice babysat my grandson. I soon began to check other My Space sites of some of the kids I knew from the neighborhood, church, and within my family. I soon discovered other young girls that I knew boosted their age to 18 or 19 years old and included their wild sexual desires and/or fantasies.

My point in sharing this information is that I believe that the juvenile authorities should launch their own sting operation to catch young girls that lure men into the trap of Statutory Rape by pretending to be older. These kids are inviting strange men and boys to their parent's home for acts that could send naïve men to prison. Perhaps undercover agents should respond to some of these My Space profiles and save these kids from themselves. However these kids need higher morals and counseling, not incarceration.

While it is justice that the adult males in pursue of young girls are busted and face imprisonment, it is unjust that no uncover law enforcement agency is conducting sting operations to catch the young girls that are misleading older males online. Every parent should check up their child's My Space profile and also the profile of their friends.

SHINE Center Opens in Riverside

Mayor Ronald O. Loveridge together with Springboard president and CEO, Todd Emerson.

The Black Voice News

RIVERSIDE

Springboard Nonprofit Consumer Credit Management recently held their grand opening of the organization's SHINE Center, which stands for "Sustaining Homeownership in the Inland Empire". The SHINE Center is located at 1605 Spruce Street in Riverside, and is the agency's second location in Riverside County.

The financial education and counseling center, is being opened by Springboard.

"We're pleased to celebrate this important milestone," said Todd Emerson, Springboard's President and CEO. "We realize that this is a very challenging economic climate for many consumers to maneuver. We're committed to providing hands-on counseling and promoting personal financial education for everyone," said Emerson.

Throughout the nation, Springboard offers assistance with money and credit management through educational programs and confidential credit counseling in both English and Spanish.

The focus of operations at the SHINE Center include in-person counseling sessions, confidential telephone counseling sessions and financial literacy workshops on topics ranging from homebuyer education, the power of paycheck planning to the wise use of credit and understanding credit scores.

In recent months, analysts have ranked the Inland Empire second nationwide when it comes to home foreclosures. Springboard looks to be a leader in helping to bring stability to the Inland Empire community by providing consumers with sound financial education and counseling.

RESTORING AND PROTECTING MARRIAGE: YES ON PROPOSITION 8

Since the dawn of time, marriage has been understood by people of virtually every faith and culture to be the union of a man and a woman. Marriage predates government. Its unique place in civilization is both derived from God and inherently natural to man. Marriage is intrinsic to a stable, flourishing and loving society. It provides the ideal relationship to commit men and women to each other, to provide for the procreative continuation of civilization and to raise children with both a mother and father. The sanctity of marriage is worth defending and protecting.

Proposition 8 says simply and powerfully:

"Only marriage between a man and a woman is valid or recognized in California."

Proposition 8:

- Restores the definition of marriage. The meaning of marriage is written in the very nature of man and woman. Over 61% of Californians have recognized this with their votes in favor of traditional marriage.

- Changes the California Constitution to overturn the decision of four judges on the California Supreme Court who wrongly imposed same-sex marriage on California, against the express desire of millions of voters.
- Secures parental rights to teach children about relationships according to their own values and beliefs. Unless Proposition 8 passes, California law may compel public schools to teach children there is no difference between traditional marriage and same-sex marriage. When Massachusetts legalized gay marriage, schools began teaching second graders that boys can marry other boys. The courts ruled that parents had no right to object.

Proposition 8 does not take away any rights or benefits from gay or lesbian domestic partners. Under California's domestic partner laws (Family Code Section 297.5) they have rights and benefits identical to those of spouses.

Spotlight 29 Casino Welcomes The Hilarious, Emmy-Winning Wanda Sykes

The Black Voice News

COACHELLA

Get ready to laugh 'til your funny bone hurts when comedian Wanda Sykes takes over the microphone at Spotlight 29 Casino on October 18. The Emmy-winner has been called one of the funniest stand-up comics, and Entertainment Weekly calls her one of the "25 Funniest People in America." Sykes is starring along with special guest Keith Robinson.

Sykes first began working in stand up in 1987, and since then has had a successful career as a comic, a writer and an actor. In addition to her TV work, including "The New Adventures of Old Christine," she has appeared in more than a dozen movies, including "Evan Almighty," "Monster-in-Law" and "My Super Ex-Girlfriend," and has been heard in such animated features as "Barnyard" and "Over the Hedge."

She has been nominated as a performer and writer for three Emmys and won as a writer in 1999. In 2001, she won the American Comedy Award for Outstanding Female Stand-up Comic.

Her standup act is as timely as it is hilarious. Famously outspoken on just about every topic, Sykes recently said, "If you don't believe in same-sex marriage, then don't marry someone of the same sex!"

This concert is rated R, which is not at all unusual for Sykes. In fact, in August 2006, she told Entertainment Weekly, "People ask me to leave a phone message for their boyfriend and curse them out. I'm like, 'Get the f--- out of here, what's wrong with you? I'm not doing that.' And even then, they go, 'Ha-ha! She told me to get the f--- outta here, she's so funny!' I can't win."

This is a return visit to the Palm Springs area for Sykes. Her 2004 trip was called one of the five most memorable of the year by the Desert Sun newspaper. It could have been her act or her riding a Cessna down a downtown street that made it memorable. Either way, Sykes firmly established herself as a must-see performer in the Coachella Valley.

Tickets for Wanda Sykes and special guest Keith Robinson are $55 and $45 and are available now at Spotlight29.com, at the Spotlight 29 Casino Gift Shop or by calling Star Tickets at (800) 585-3737. Show time is 8 p.m. R Rated: Content May Not Be Suitable for all audiences. Must be 18 Years and accompanied by Adult 21+.

Put the spotlight on fun at Spotlight 29 Casino, the Coachella Valley's most exciting place to play. Spotlight 29 Casino is a business venture of the Twenty-Nine Palms Band of Mission Indians. Turn it on at www.Spotlight29.com.

Wanda Sykes will appear at Spotlight 29 Casino October 18th.

Monterey Pours Jazz Into The Hearts And Souls Of Youth

The Black Voice News

MONTEREY

By Taylor Jordan

Jazz begins at home and goes abroad, thanks to the educational and musical outreach programs presented by the Monterey Jazz Festival for talented teens looking for exciting edges and creative license.

The 51st annual Monterey Jazz Festival presented by Verizon kicked off a fall weekend of five concerts on eight Monterey County Fairgrounds stages with a concert for elementary and middle-school students.

The Thursday lunchtime pre-show featured the Berklee College of Music Latin Jazz All-Stars, an awesome ensemble with trumpeter Niv Toar, flutist Enrique "Kalani" Trinidad, pianist Abraham Olivo, bassist Juan Maldonado and percussionists Marcos Lopez and Paulo Stagnaro respectively on timbales and congas.

The weekend had too many little, annoying children – infants, toddlers, preschoolers and youngsters whose parents offered them nothing in terms of music education, respect for others and discipline. But youth in grade, middle and high schools who grasp the significance of jazz as an original American art form and love the improvisational nature of jazz played by masters were warmly welcomed by serious fans and artists.

Christian McBride, the former child prodigy and young lion musically mentored by Art Blakey, Ray Brown, Bobby Watson, Benny Green and Betty Carter, was a perfect choice for 2008 MJF artist-in-residence. His musicianship and pleasant personality helped fine tune talented teens in the Next Generation Jazz Orchestra, a conglomeration of young musicians judged to be the best in the United States and Canada by MJF legends, pioneers and masters.

McBride and master reed artist Paul Contos, who directs the Next Generation, took the teens to newer and higher levels of showmanship and playing.

The magic of the music was not lost on Monterey High School singers Olivia Sedoryk and Edward Trout, violinist Sage Lang and acoustic bassist/cellist Athena Buell, all 14.

Active in school jazz, concert and classical ensembles, the four relished the Berklee Latin Jazz All-Stars performance and reflected on the reasons for their enthusiasm about jazz in general.

Hearing collegiate and master musicians "encourages us to practice, practice, practice because we hope to be as good as they are," Sage said. Monterey Jazz moments and musicians are "inspiring," added Athena.

"Most kids our age don't listen to jazz music," Olivia admitted. "Bringing in youngsters who haven't heard jazz before opens a new door for them to appreciate and maybe even play jazz."

Edward and Athena lamented the mediocrity of pop music today. They said they prefer jazz because it "is music from the soul," Athena explained. Edward said jazz brings together diverse people to share common interests.

The four said jazz breaks down barriers between people and broadens their world perspectives. Most people who are jazz fans tend to be more aware of humane issues and politically challenging concerns, they said, citing youth who put on a jazz benefit for children in Darfur victimized by genocide in Sudan.

"I wrote a song for Darfur. It was called 'Words Like Fire' and asked what has the world become if we don't save the kids in Africa," Sage said. "Words and music can light up the world, reconcile differences and end conflict. We need words, not war."

Musical words can promote peaceful action, Olivia claimed.

"That's right. Our little school raised $3,000 to buy school supplies and solar-powered stoves for children orphaned by genocide in Sudan and who live in the Darfur refugee camp," Athena reported.

Lela Hautau and her Pacific Grove Middle School girlfriends Cate Pfeiff, Mica McCloud and Laura Merchak clapped to the riveting rhythms of Latin jazz blasting from the stage. Other children couldn't sit still and gladly leaped up to dance as conga lines formed and weaved around equally enthusiastic young fans and their teachers.

One is never too young to get into music, contended 21-year-olds Toar and Olivo. Toar, started playing trumpet at age 8 while Olivo's piano lessons began when he was 9 years old.

Olivo focused on classical music, theatrical and visual arts and dance until he discovered jazz while attending Boston Arts Academy, a public school for students involved in the performance and visual arts.

"That's when I started not minding practicing for a few hours," Olivo said. "Jazz, unlike classical music which emphasizes the composers more, allows musicians to develop their own techniques, find their own voice and be recognized for it. Chopin is great, but so is Coltrane. And you don't hear Trane's name each time an artist plays one of his compositions."

After successfully auditioning for the only arts' high school in Israel, Toar shifted from the strict structure of classical music to jazz so he could expand his musical horizons and find greater self-expression. He went to Berklee on a full-ride scholarship and graduated last May.

Toar and Olivo said it was exciting and inspiring to see youth turned on to their performances in much the same way they respond to musicians older than them.

"It's great to see young people enjoying music as complex and sophisticated as jazz," Toar concluded.

CASE NUMBER RIC 487362 David Neal, Mrs. David Neal, Does 1-10 You are being sued by plaintiff: Deborah Gaw You have 30 Calendar Days after this summons and legal papers are served on you to file a written response at this court and have a copy served on the plaintiff. A letter or phone call will not protect you. Your written response must be in proper legal form if you want the court to hear your case. There may be a court form that you can use for your response. You can find these court forms and more information at the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), your county law library, or the courthouse nearest you. If you cannot pay the filing fee, ask the court clerk for a fee waiver form. If you do not file your response on time, you may lose the case by default, and your wages, money, and property may be taken without further warning from the court. There are other legal requirements. You may want to call an attorney right away. If you do not know an attorney, you may want to call an attorney referral service. If you are eligible for free legal services from a nonprofit legal services program, you can locate these nonprofit groups at the California Legal Services Web site (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), or by contacting your local court or county bar association. Tiene 30 Dias de Calendario despues de que le entreguen esta citacion y papeles legales para presentar una respuesta por escrito en esta corte y hacer que se entregue una copia al demandante. Una carta o una llamada telefonica no lo protegen. Su respuesta por escrito tiene que estar en formato legal correcto si desea que procesen su caso en la corte. Es posible que haya un formulario que usted pueda usar para su respuesta. Puede encontrar estos formularios de la corte y mas informacion en el Centro de Ayuda de las Cortes de California (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp/ espanol), en la biblioteca de leyes de su condado o en la corte que le quede mas cerca. Si no puede pagar la cuota de presentacion, pida al secretario de la corte que le de un formulario de exencion de pago de cuotas. Si no presenta su respuesta a tiempo, puede perder el caso por incumplimiento y la corte le podra quitar su sueldo, dinero y bienes sin mas advertencia. Hay otros requisitos legales. Es recomendable que llame a un abogado inmediatamente. Si no conoce a un abogado, puede llamar a un servicio de remision a abogados. Si no puede pagar a un abogado, es posible que cumpla con los requisitos para obtener servicios legales gratuitos de un programa de servicios legales sin fines de lucro. Puede encontrar estos grupos sin fines de lucro en el sitio web de California legal Services, (www.lawhelpcalifornia.org), en el Centro de Ayuda de las Cortes de California, (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp/ espanol) o poniendose en contacto con la corte o el colegio de abogados locales. NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: ERNEST RANDE NEVISON-MAPELLI

Case Number RIP 094545

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of: ERNEST RANDE NEVISON-MAPELLI. A Petition for Probate has been filed by LORA L. CARROLL in the Superior Court of California, County of RIVERSIDE. The Petition for Probate requests that: LORA L. CARROLL be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition.

tion to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: Date: 11/10/08 Time: 9:00 Dept.: P201, 4175 Main Street, Riverside, CA 92501. If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above. You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk. Attorney for petitioner: Richard Nevins, 3995 Brockton Avenue, Riverside, CA 92501, (951) 750-6630

Second Baptist Hosts 2008 Fall Revival

The Black Voice News

RIVERSIDE

Pastor Willie Smith

Pastor T. Ellsworth Gantt, II

and the members of Second Baptist Church, extend a joyful invitation to the public, to join them at their 2008 Fall Revival. The revival will start at 7:00 p.m. nightly on Monday, October 27th thru 29th. They are honored to have as their guest speaker, the renowned, Willie Smith, Senior Pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church of San Diego, California.

Pastor Smith provides Preaching, Teaching, Evangelistic-Outreach, Administrative and Pastoral Care ministries full time.

Since assuming his responsibilities at Calvary in 1994, the congregation has experienced solid growth in love, fellowship and evangelism. He has instituted Ministerial Training for the "Sons of Calvary", two annual Revivals, Foreign Missions, Winter Bible Study and Wednesday Night Discipleship Classes. Pastor Smith has also traveled internationally on various foreign mission fields. The list includes Belize, Zimbabwe, Kenya and the Virgin Islands. He is the visionary organizer of the King-Chavez Academy of Excellence Charter School of San Diego on the Campus of Calvary Baptist Church; Bible Teacher during "Black Church Development Week," Glorieta, New Mexico. He is constantly sought as a Revivalist and Conference Keynote speaker. Pastor Smith is married to Toni Annette (Robinson) Smith. He is the father of three children, Willie Jr., Kelli and Kristian, and two grand children.

Pastor T. Ellsworth Gantt, II states, "Second Baptist is truly honored and grateful to have such a dynamic, influential and knowledgeable man of god grace us with his humble spirit and powerful message. If you never received the opportunity to witness this great man of God, we extend to you this personal invitation to come out and get your soul revived and rejoice. You are guaranteed to receive a Blessing!"

Pastor Lacy K Sykes, Jr. and the Music Ministry of Cross Word Christian Church™ announced "Let the Redeemed of The Lord Say So"—the 2008 Fall Musical being held on Sunday, October 26 at 5 p.m. featuring Pastor Lacy K. and 1st Lady Karen Sykes, Jr.

Voices of The Word Mass Choir and the Spiritually

Anointed Praise Dancers.

"We are excited about the vision God has given Cross Word Christian Church—Growing Spiritually Empowered Christians. We host this Musical with grateful hearts for all that God has done for us—individually and collectively as a church body," said Pastor Sykes. "We invite everyone to join us for a time of high praise and celebration as we worship God and thank Him for His many blessings."

This is a free community event so come one, come all. The musical will take place at the church location: 14950 Riverside Drive, Riverside, CA 92518 (east of March ARB at Riverside & Meyer Drive across from the National Guard Training Facility). For more information and specific directions, visit the church website at www.crosswordchurch.org, email musicministry@crosswordchurch.org or call 951-697-8803.
